Ethics and Boundaries

January and February 2015 Programs

In Madison, WI

Attention social workers, counselors, therapists, and human services providers: Fulfill your ethics
and boundaries licensure requirements!

Ethics and Boundaries: Biological Foundations

With Instructor David Mays, MD, PhD

Thursday, Jan 22

9am-4pm, registration 8:30-9am

0.6 CEU, $150

While many ethics workshops focus on defining and solving ethical dilemmas in health care, few workshops ever address from where our opinions about ethics and virtue come. Research in social science, economics, and biology provide exciting new data pertaining to the question: why do human beings care about ethics at all? When people care about ethics, what exactly do they care about? This workshop addresses the biological roots of human morality and leaves you with a deeper understanding of how to think about—as well as how to manage—ethics in your work and in the lives of your clients.

We have now entered the age of evolution by design. Soon we will tailor our pharmaceutical treatments to the genetic makeup of the patient. Our new understanding of mental illnesses will allow us to explore early intervention and prevention. We are already using genetic knowledge to enhance human performance and create new organisms. But just because we can do these things, does it mean we should? This program helps you get a better understanding of modern genetics and explore some of these 21st-century ethical dilemmas.

No Simple Answers: Advanced Ethics and Boundaries Issues

With Instructor Gary Schoener, M.Ed

Wednesday, Feb 11

9am-4pm, registration 8:30-9am

0.6 CEU, $150

Designed for people who have training in basic ethics and boundaries, this seminar focuses on clinical decision-making in complicated situations where simple answers won't suffice. During this session you explore a variety of approaches to complex situations, with a focus on alternative strategies and effective documentation. Sharpen your decision-making skills regarding ethical dilemmas and boundary challenges.

These programs fulfill the ethics and boundaries licensing requirements for Wisconsin social workers, professional counselors, and marriage and family therapists. For other professions or licensure in other states, contact your own board or organization for specific continuing education requirements.

Ethics and Boundaries: Ethics and Social Media (Unit 1)

Cultural Issues and Ethics (Unit 2)

With Instructor Gary Schoener, M.Ed

Thursday, Feb 12

Unit 1: 8am-noon, registration 7:30-8am

Unit 2: 1-5pm, registration 12:30-1pm

Both Unit 1 and 2 are 0.4 CEU, $80 each; for both, 0.8 CEU, $150

Register for just Unit 1 or Unit 2, or both.

Unit 1: Ethics and Social Media

Designed for people who have training in basic ethics and boundaries, this four-hour program examines ethical and boundary challenges encountered with social media including the Internet, email, and texting. You review the newest research and insights of the impact of social media on ethics and boundaries.

Unit 2: Cultural Issues and Ethics

Designed for people who have training in basic ethics and boundaries, this four-hour program explores cultural issues while examining ethical and boundary challenges. This seminar teaches psychologists, social workers, and others about ethics and boundaries within a cultural framework.

Ethics and Boundaries in AODA Counseling

With Instructor Gary Schoener, M.Ed

Friday, Feb 13

9am-4pm, registration 8:30-9am

0.6 CEU, $150

Challenges in professional ethics and boundaries continually evolve. This presentation focuses on how to handle such issues within the context of service considerations. AODA counseling is impacted by federal rules that are different from those in healthcare and mental health. There are also different traditions in AODA counseling that create special challenges.

This program focuses on some basic approaches to decision-making and the handling of specific service challenges. You learn via review of case examples, videotape vignettes, and questions and case examples discussed by group participants. Handouts that cover key areas of decision-making are provided.

Faculty

David Mays, MD, PhD, is a forensic psychiatrist and directed the forensic program at the Mendota Mental Health Institute in Madison, WI for 13 years. examples are drawn from experience with more than 4,000 complaints or legal cases over the past 40 years.

What others have said about these instructors:

David Mays never disappoints. He always presents a well-organized, insightful, intelligent class.

David Mays has a great ability to make this interesting, thought-provoking, and refreshing.

Great factual information, realistic approach and in-depth analysis. Gary Schoener is a great, knowledgeable, empathetic presenter.

Excellent way to present ethics—and I love the ability to move past the basics.
